THE ROLES OF MENTAL HEALTH PROFESSIONALS IN FAMILY LAW MATTERS

SPEAKERS

Allen I. Tullar, Esq.

As the Chair of Gross McGinley's Matrimonial and Family Law Group, Allen regularly counseling individuals in divorce, custody and child support matters. As a Mediator, Allen helps families face difficult circumstances while easing the burden of legal expenditures and added duress. When court action is required, his experience in the family court system allows Allen to help clients navigate stressful proceedings and obtain fair settlements.

Constance K. Nelson, Esq.

Connie counsels families facing legal matters including divorce and alimony negotiations, child custody and guardianship matters, grandparent rights, and prenuptial agreements.

Mental health professionals play crucial roles related to family law matters. Presented by two experienced family lawyers, this 1.0 credit hour seminar will discuss the services therapists, counselors, and psychologists provide in family law matters and the ethical and lawful considerations of each. This session will help participants identify ethical and legal aspects of providing expert testimony in family law matters, assess legal considerations of privilege and confidentiality in family law matters, and analyze the responsibilities of mental health professionals performing home studies, custody evaluations, and parental coordination. Our attorneys will also provide real-world examples of how these roles played out in the family law setting.

We hope you will join us for this informative seminar in the fall!
